Ph.D. FELLOWSHIPS

The University of Louisiana at Lafayette has established a doctoral fellowships program for the recruitment of superior students. Fellowships are available in the areas of Applied Language and Speech Sciences, Cognitive Science, Computer Engineering, Computer Science, English, Environmental and Evolutionary Biology, Francophone Studies, and Mathematics. The academic-year renewable awards include a minimum stipend of $15,775, waiver of tuition and most fees (approximately $11,350 for non-resident students), and low-cost, on-campus housing (if available). Board of Regents fellowships are also available in certain areas.

Completed applications must be submitted by February 15. A completed application includes this form, an application to the Graduate School, official transcripts, GRE scores (TOEFL and KNU scores, if applicable), and three letters of recommendation from academic references familiar with the applicant's scholarly accomplishments and potential for success in a doctoral program.

The University is an Equal Opportunity / Affirmative Action Employer.
